Dialectical Behavior Therapy (DBT) was created by Marsha Linehan specifically for the treatment for people who have Borderline Personality Disorder (BPD) in the late 80s. DBT has had effective outcomes for helping people with various other types of mental and behavioral disorders as well.

Recreational Therapists can implement several aspects of DBT approach when providing services.

This one-day workshop is brief and does not cover all of the depth and knowledge of DBT developed by Marsha Linehan.
