1. What is your name: Your degree and college:
   Bachelors of Science, Major: Recreation Therapy; Temple University

2. Are you a CTRS? If so – for how long?
   Yes, I have been certified since February 2022

3. Are you an ATRA member?
   Yes

4. Awards you've earned?
   None [yet], though maybe someday. Honestly just graduating and being able to work in a profession that I chose is rewarding itself.

5. Why did you become a rec therapist?
   Someone asked me if I could pick my dream job what would it be. I had said either to work with animals or do fun activities with older adults. Although at the time I did not say older adults. This friend came back to me with a printout from Temple University's website about recreational therapy and thus my journey began. Also, I was raised by my grandparents and I always cite them as a reason why I think I'm drawn to working with that population.

6. What do type of setting do you current work?
   I currently work in a Skilled Nursing Facility. Since senior year I've been interested in working in mental health, which is still a goal.

7. What population do you provide services for?
   Older adults.

8. What types of recreation therapy interventions do you provide?
   I always like to try new interventions and of course I base the interventions on the persons' served. I do things like putt-putt bubble science, gardening, a lot of cognitive, sensory and physical interventions as well as arts and crafts. I truly enjoy brainstorming ways I can adapt and intervention so that a person can achieve engagement in something that they previously enjoyed.

9. What do you love about your work?
I enjoy connecting with people and giving them purpose and joy. The most rewarding times have been when I get a reaction or achievements from a person I'm working with that I never would have thought could be possible. It's hard to surprise someone who thinks most things are possible. It makes me feel validated professionally and is proof that our profession is so much more than some people think.

10. What would you recommend a new rec therapist to do?
Don't be afraid to start a conversation especially if you work in a setting where you're not as clinical as, for example, physical rehab is. Be willing to try new things and sometimes fail. Try not to worry about what your peers at your job think. I worried about looking silly but I am silly, be yourself. Learn your elevator speech because you won't be explaining recreational therapy a lot and also Advocate, Advocate, Advocate. They drill that in our heads because you will have to all the time and it's important. Get involved.

11. Where do you see the future of rec therapy?
I'm ambiguous about our future as professionals. It's hard to go to 4-year College and then struggle to get a livable wage. That being said I don't mind advocating for myself or the profession. I truly believe in what we do and I hope that others start to appreciate what we do more so than the current culture.

12. Who is a recreation therapist who you admire and why?
I have two recreational therapist that really made a mark on me. They are both instructors at Temple University Aurora Verlin, MS, CTRS and Brandon Snead, MS, CTRS. They have had a huge role in making me the recreational therapist I am today. They also have supported me professionally and I am forever grateful of the both of them. I also have to mention Heather Porter, MS, CTRS because of her exceptional textbooks and knowledgeability of the field.

13. What other information would you like to share?

- I find that when I do my job I have gained respect for our profession and it goes a long way in getting others to advocate for our field. Try different sites for your internships and volunteer experiences. It will help you get a job in a different setting if you so choose that the current one or the one you planned on is not panning out.

- Do your homework on potential job opportunities to find out more about the location for positives and negatives. Do not just look at their website.

- Ask questions on interviews like what do you like about your job?, Or "What are some of the positives and negatives of your job?". Talk to your professors build I relationships they have been invaluable to me.

- Try new Leisure and hobbies for yourself to become more well-rounded as a professional.

What Do You LOVE About Rec Therapy Today?

I appreciate the ability to get CEUs especially knowing that they will be accepted by our Professional Organization, NCTRC. I also am and in love with the websites, like this one, that support RT professionals beyond CEU's, there aren't too many out there.
